Program Description

Kid Writing is a research based approach endorsed by the National Writing Project . The approach is designed to provide balanced literacy instruction to develop reading, writing, listening and speaking for PreK-1st grade. It can also be used for remediation in upper Primary grades.

Objectives of Program

*Develop independent writers who self-monitor their learning*Implement a systematic approach to the Primary Writing Workshop (including phonics & spelling: word level skills; phonemic segmentation; letter-sound associations; on-set rime knowledge) in the context of an emergent writer's meaningful attempts to compose written messages*Connect reading/writing/speaking & listening through shared & interactive writing/reading, word wall, guided writing & reading *Investigate writing as a tool - Writing Across the Curriculum*Conduct conversations with writers (writing conferences)*Explore online teaching tools to support Non-Traditional Instruction*Engage in formative assessment to determine next steps for instruction to support each writer's individual needs. *Review student benchmarks for each developmental writing stage.*Observe Kid Writing teachers in action; prepare for conducting Action Research in your school
